

ENTHUSIASM WAS RAMPANT

Three Hundred Happy and Confident Men Enjoyed Watson Club Smoker.

SPEAKERS WERE INTERRUPTED

Passed Out so Much Good News That the Audience Could Not Keep Still.

Enthusiasm! Well it was in every nook and corner of the Republican headquarters last night. The more the three hundred men at the meeting of the Young Men's Watson club smoked, the more they enjoyed it.

There was enough there to make anybody happy. Whenever the array of speakers that were on the program gets warmed up if you don't want to be a Republican, get out of hearing distance.

President Walter Newhouse presided at the meeting and Albert Capp and Sam Anderson passed out all the cigars the folks wanted.

Judge Sparks said he intended to say and do all he could for the party and he was sure Watson would be the next governor of Indiana. The way that crowd applauded was a wonder—they yelled, clapped their hands, and one fellow said amen.

Captain John K. Gowdy told what he thought about people that would slander a man, tell lies, and run down his character the way some papers and people have been doing Mr. Watson. He was confident the thing would react on the guilty parties now that the schemes have been exposed and the lies nailed.

Rev. J. F. Gillespie gave a reason for the faith that was in him and said he thought he knew what he was talking about when he advised a young man to ally himself with the Republican party.

A. L. Gary handed out a hot one. He "opened the books" and read them right, giving correct figures. He showed that the Republican townships in the county had the lowest taxes while the Democratic ones had the highest. Then he asked how it would lower taxes to put in Democratic officials. Three hundred men are still trying to solve the puzzle.

A. E. Martin discussed the party as one of progress and showed how it had always taken steps forward—none backward.

Prof. J. H. Williams was the last speaker and had the audience thinking, laughing or applauding all the time. He asked some mighty pertinent questions and showed how inconsistent some folks are.

The meeting had a stirring finale with the audience, led by Capt. J. K. Gowdy, singing "John Brown."

OLD ENEMIES TO MEET NEXT SUNDAY

Warm and Exciting Contest Expected in the New Castle-Connersville Ball Game.

LOCAL PLAYERS IN LINE-UP

The strong New Castle ball team will play the Connersville club at Connersville next Sunday and one of the best games of the season is anticipated. Carter, Halterman and Morgan, Rush county products on the team, will attract many Rushville rooters. The game will be called at 2:30 o'clock. New Castle will run a special train for the game.

NEW ANDERSONVILLE PIKE

Many People are Anxious to See it Completed.

The new pike at Andersonville is just about half done. Work was started a month ago and it is thought that it can be completed by November. The people around Andersonville are well satisfied with the new pike and are anxious to see it completed. Emsweller and Stant have the contract.

GET INTO POLITICS AND FORGET TAXES

But Five Weeks Remain for the Payment of the Fall Installment.

WORK COMES IN A BUNCH

There remains but five weeks in which the fall installment of taxes can be paid without the ten per cent penalty for delinquency being added.

The situation is a distressing one to the Treasurer and his office force, for it is realized that there is much hard work ahead and that it will come all in a bunch. No one doubts but that the taxes will be paid and that there will be no more than the usual amount of delinquency, but they would like to have the work of handing out receipts and entering credits scattered over a little more time than three or four days.

This year is the hardest kind of one to collect taxes on account of it being a campaign year. People get interested in politics and forget all about their duty to the government. It is for this reason that Treasurer Caldwell is urging everybody to get in early with their tax money, for politics promise to warm up about right in a short time.

WILL CONTRIBUTE TO TROPHY FUND

Local Corn Growers Will Help Build the Design for National Exposition.

INDIANA PICKED TO WIN

Rush county members of the Corn Growers Association will contribute ten dollars to a fund with which to build a corn trophy to be sent to the National Corn Exposition to be held at Omaha in December. The movement to build this trophy is State wide, every county contributing its share. The trophy will be sent to the National Exposition, where it will compete with all of the other States. The prize offered for the best trophy is $1000. Indiana is one of the best corn growing States in the union and local corn growers say they are confident that Indiana will get the premium.

Denny Ryan and family have moved from North Harrison street to the Dillon property in North Perkins street.

Chase Lateral was arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Pea for intoxication and before Mayor Cowing today was fined $1 and costs, amounting to $11.

Oliver P. Carson, an attorney of Indianapolis, who spoke here at the Men's meeting, will probably spend two or three days in the county in the interests of the Republican party.

NEAR PANIC VAUDET THEATRE

Cry of Fire Puts Crowd in Alarm and Damage is Narrowly Averted.

ALL FIREMEN WERE THERE. Alarm Was Meant for Them, But Remainder of Audience Heard It Too.

A panic was narrowly averted at the Vaudet theater last night. During a performance about 8:30 o'clock some thoughtless person yelled "fire." In a second the people were on their feet and scrambling for the door. The house was crowded and the aisle was jammed with people trying to escape. Even the pianist left her position and rushed for the door. The women and some of the men in the house got excited, but fortunately the false report was corrected before any damage was done. Several men in the house who understood the situation, quieted the crowd and convinced them that there was no fire.

An alarm did go in from box 21. All of the firemen were at the show and when someone in the back part of the house heard the alarm they gave the cry of fire to inform the firemen and did not think of the trouble it would cause the rest of the audience.

GAS PRESSURE WAS AFFECTED

Connection on the Mains of the Rushville Natural Gas Company Blew Out.

GAS WAS LOW THREE HOURS.

The Rushville Natural Gas Company had an accident yesterday which lowered the pressure in the city here from 12 until 2:30 o'clock yesterday. A connection on the main line blew out and it took the employees almost three hours to repair it. The accident was unavoidable.

DRIVEN FROM PARK BY OLD JACKFROST

Missionary Baptists Will Hold Their Meetings in the Court House Assembly Room.

EVANGELIST DRAWS CROWD

On account of the continued chilly weather, the tent meetings of the Missionary Baptists will be discontinued in the city park, for the present at least, and beginning tonight meetings will be held in the assembly room at the court house. Evangelist Lehigh has made a good impression on all who have heard him, and many of our representative citizens are nightly auditors.

THE WEATHER

Fair tonight with frost. Friday fair with rising temperature.

ATTACKED LAST NIGHT

But Husky Young Fellow, With Football Training, Bested the Demented Lunatic.

Excitement ran high last night at the Windsor hotel when a crazy man ran amuck. It was about ten-thirty when night clerk Carl Gunning looked up from his books on hearing a man approach, and was terrified to see a wild-eyed individual standing before him, saliva running from the corners of his mouth, fire flashing from his eye, his whole frame shaking like one afflicted with palsy and breathing as one who had just come a long distance at fast speed. Gunning's first thought was that the fellow was drunk. But he proved to be demented and a character of the most dangerous type.

The fellow was bent on murder and like Mr. Hyde did he gnash his teeth and mutter in almost inaudible tones, that he would have the blood of some man. He opened a large knife and started around the desk after Gunning, but the husky lad who is a member of the high school football team and in the pink of condition, physically, from training, grabbed the fellow and quickly peshed him back against the wall before he had an opportunity to use the knife. He was then persuaded to put the open knife in his pocket. For a few minutes he remained quiet, standing looking into space after the fashion of deranged persons. Of a sudden he broke forth again and cried aloud for a pistol that he might kill an imaginary foe. He was then put out of the hotel and City Marshal Price was sent for.

The queerest part of it all, no one seemed to know the fellow or ever remembered seeing him before. It was not learned where he went or from where he came, but it is thought that he is an escaped inmate of some institution in this vicinity.

POSTED LETTER IN SIGNAL BOX

The Letter Did Not go But the Fire Bell Did—No Extra Charge.

OLD MAN WAS AWFUL SORRY

About the only resemblance between a mail box and a fire alarm signal box is that they are both on corners. Still there was a repetition of the same old story last night when a stranger attempted to put a letter in box 21, corner of Perkins and Ninth streets.

The company made a fast run to the box and found an old man waiting there to tell them there was no fire. He explained that he was told that there was a mail box on the corner. He saw the box, opened it, and the fire bell began to ring. He said he was awful sorry, and promised never to make the mistake again. The firemen were congenial and said they were sorry, too, then turned around and came back to the station house. Chief Andy Stiffler took the letter and mailed it for the old man.

INJURED WOMAN IS RECOVERING

Mrs. John Petty Injured by Traction Car Thought to be Out of Danger.

WERE NO INTERNAL INJURIES

Concerning Mrs. John Petty, a former Rushville woman, who was injured Tuesday, the Connersville Examiner says:

Mrs. John Petty, who was struck by a traction car Tuesday afternoon while crossing the tracks at Lincoln avenue and Tenth streets, and had such a miraculous escape from death, was reported as resting easy today, and her recovery is anticipated. Her physician stated today that at present there are no indications of internal injuries and he has hopes that nothing of the kind will develop. Shortly after the accident Mrs. Petty was removed from the Mulheer home to that of Mrs. Swift, on Tenth street, where she will remain until she is able to be taken to her home.

Violate Ordinance

There is a despicable practice on the part of some men who stand along the sidewalks, of squirting amber on anything they chance to hit. Several business men, who are particular about the cleanliness of their windows, are frequently annoyed by having to remove tobacco juice from their windows, put there purposely or carelessly by users of the weed.

And the sidewalks along the sides of the buildings show an absolute disregard of the city ordinance against spitting on the sidewalk. "He that is filthy, let him be filthy still," and our officers should compel these men to spit in the gutter.

A school of women chemists has recently been opened in Dessau, Germany.

BOYS IN BLUE WILL CONDUCT MEETING

Comrade John M. Stevens Will Address the Old Soldiers' Watson Club Next Week.

PUBLIC INVITED TO ATTEND

The Old Soldiers' Watson club will meet at the Republican headquarters in the K. of P. building next Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. All first voters are invited to join the "boys in blue" on this occasion and participate in the meeting. Hon. John Stevens will make the principal address of the evening. The public generally is invited to attend.

It reads like Shakespeare gave Adonis" where he pursued the man. It is a conflict of hearts and people; a husband tries to stick to the narrow; a wife, who has been wronged, and a tyrannical dictator heart along the line of affinity "gag." Another handing out the fruit of the old apple tree.

The story had its beginning years ago. At that time, Mrs. Myrtle Black became a stockman. Then he was single free. Afterwards he married. So did Mrs. Black. Mrs. Black came a widow. Mr. Beaver was a loving and dutiful husband. The old flame burned in the heart of the woman and she still loved her first love. The affair of her seemed to overshadow her reasoning powers and better judgment.

Several incidents occurred in the life of the two, but the real climax came yesterday. Mrs. Black had been away; been living in Michigan or some other "cool State" for some time. During that time all went well. During the time she lived with her father east of this city on a farm, she proved a great source of annoyance to the wife of the man pursued.

This week Mrs. Black came back and was trying to keep it "dark"—at least that is what her friends claim. She took rooms at a rooming house in West Second street and straightway sent a note to her "affinity," saying she wished to see him. Of course she said other things, but that is what caused all the dust to be kicked up at this time. Wow! The missive went amiss. Mrs. Beaver got the note. A hasty toilet and she was on the way. Her husband's affinity was given notice to get busy at once and leave town. Other things were said. And Mrs. Black did pack her luggage and marked 23 on same in box car letters, leaving the city a forlorn "un-merry" widow.

Women Who Wear

astonishing how great a change in the appearance and disposition of many women comes with marriage and the birth of a child. The freshness, the charm, the glow that once shone in their eyes, vanish like the bloom from a flower when it is rudely handled. The woman who is dim shadow, a faint echo of her former self, is a young maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Many young women appreciate the value of the system through the use of Dr. Pierce's Female Regulator. Many neglect to deal with the pelvic drains and weak-ness, and too often come with mar-riedhood, not understanding that the drain is robbing the cheek of its color and the form of its

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nerve-nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

INDIANS "RUN" FOR OFFICE.

Santa Fe, N. M., Sept. 30.—A literal illustration of "running for office," and one which might add interest if adopted by the palefaces in their political campaigns, will be a feature of the celebration of the feast of San Geronimo at Taos today. In accordance with custom, a relay race will decide the governor of the pueblo for the ensuing year.

For days hordes of Utes, Navajos, Apaches and Mexicans have been gathering at the quaint pueblo of Taos for the great redskin event. The customary quiet that broods over Taos valley has been broken by the incoming bands of Indians from all over the Southwest, and today the festival of their patron saint reaches its enthusiastic culmination. The feast is celebrated on the last day of September of every year.

The San Geronimo, or St. Jerome, celebration today begins with a weird recitation, or incantation, by a black-robed Indian priest, which is heard with superstitious awe by the assembled multitudes.

In the plaza is a pine tree pole, fifty feet in height, and from a cross-piece near the top dangles a live sheep. Beside the sheep, a garland of such fruit and vegetables as the valley produces, together with a basket of bread and grain, hangs from the pole.

The bell in the little adobe chapel sounds and a few of the Indians go to mass. After the devotional exercises are concluded a procession is formed and marches to the race track, which is a quarter of a mile in length. The runners, of whom there are fifty, are naked except for a breech cloth and are painted no two alike.

Fifty other runners to contest with these arrive from the pueblo across the dividing stream. Two runners from each side dart down the track. No sooner do they reach the goal than two others start off, and thus for two hours the races continue in relays of twos. The victorious side is given the privilege of electing the governor for both pueblos for the ensuing year.

In the afternoon dances by hideously painted clowns and mirthmakers are followed by attempts to climb the pole, which is at last accomplished, and amid the yells of the on-lookers the sheep, fruit and grain are thrown to the ground and carried off, and St. Jerome is supposed to rejoice in the happy conclusion of the festival in his honor.

will speak at the West. Monday he is slated for Crawfordsville at 7:30 p. m. No engagement is announced for Oct. 6, but on Oct. 7 he will speak at a rally in Kingman early in the afternoon. Many maps already have been worn out at Republican headquarters, and many more will be required before all of the speakers for the remainder of the campaign have been placed. W. H. Taft, presidential nominee, it is said probably will visit Indiana again between his first and second tours, or at the beginning of the second one, which will carry him from his home in Cincinnati through Kentucky and Tennessee to Southern territory. Nothing further has been announced as to when President Roosevelt will come to the state if he enters the speaking campaign.

At the Democratic state headquarters it is announced that a list of distinguished speakers had been procured to appear in Indianapolis and various other cities in Indiana in October. The number includes, among the more prominent, Theodore Bell of California, Henry D. Clayton of Alabama, Governor John Johnson of Minnesota, and Congressman Champ Clark of Missouri. The Democrats have received numerous demands from small towns for speakers and are completing the list as quickly as possible. One of the noted party leaders engaged by the state committee is Senator E. W. Carmack of Tennessee. He will speak in Kendallville on Oct. 15 at 1:30 p. m., and Ligonier at 7:30. The next day he will be at Lagrange in the afternoon and Topeka at night. On Oct. 17 at 1:30 o'clock he will address a meeting at Angola and another at Auburn that night. Congressman Ollie James of Marion, Ky., one of W. J. Bryan's closest friends and a rival of Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, N. Y., for chairman of the Democratic national committee, is booked to speak Oct. 9 at Sullivan early in the afternoon and at Princeton at night. Oct. 10, he will be in Washington, afternoon; Mitchell, night; Oct. 12, Peru, afternoon; Rochester, night. Theodore Bell, who was the Democratic nominee for governor of California in 1906, and who was temporary chairman of the Denver convention, will be accompanied on his trip by Frank E. Hering of South Bend. The two will speak according to this schedule: Oct. 5, Fort Wayne, afternoon; Goshen, night. Oct. 6, Crawfordsville, afternoon; Greenfield, night. Oct. 7, Vincennes, afternoon; Evansville, night. Representative John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, who recently was elected to the senate, will be in Plymouth Oct. 15, 1:30 p. m., and Fort Wayne at night. Oct. 16, Huntington, afternoon; Richmond, night. Oct. 17, Shelbyville, afternoon; Kokomo, night. Congressman Champ Clark of Missouri has consented to speak on Oct. 8 in Veederburg in the afternoon; Oct. 9, Warren, afternoon; Oct. 10, Lawrenceburg, night. Governor Claude Swanson of Virginia on Oct. 7 will be in Elkhart; Oct. 8, Warsaw; Oct. 9 and 10, Attica and Kokomo, respectively.

J. A. Cox, a young lawyer of Crothersville, was nominated for congress by the Republicans of the Fourth district in convention at North Vernon. There were no other candidates, and the nomination was by acclamation. Mr. Cox two years ago ran for joint senator, but was defeated.

Republican Want Ads bring

The story of labor legislation shows that nearly all labor reforms originated in Republican States, and at the present day the Republicans are far ahead of the Democrats in the enactment and enforcement of laws for the welfare of men and women and children who work for a living. Twenty-six out of thirty Republican States have labor bureaus, and only seven out of sixteen Democratic States have similar bureaus, without which labor laws are often dead letters. Twenty-three Republican States have factory inspectors to see to the enforcement of the factory laws. Only six Democratic States have factory inspection services. Fifteen States—thirteen Republican and two Democratic—have free employment agencies. Eighteen States have laws on their statute books prohibiting labor on government works or public contracts for more than eight hours a day. Of these States sixteen are Republican and two Democratic. Four Republican States and one Democratic State have laws declaring eight hours to be a legal working day in the absence of a contract. Twenty-seven States prohibit the employment of children under fourteen years of age in factories. Of these twenty-three are Republican and four are Democratic States. Laws limiting the hours of the employment of children in factories or stores have been enacted in twenty-four Republican and thirteen Democratic States. Eighteen Republican and ten Democratic States prohibit night work by children. Twelve Republican and three Democratic States prohibit the employment of children in operating dangerous machinery or cleaning machinery in motion. Fifteen Republican and six Democratic States limit the hours of labor of women. It should be noted that twelve of the Republican States which limit women's hours of labor have factory inspectors to see that the law is obeyed, while only three of the Democratic States make such provision. In twenty-three Republican and ten Democratic States employers are required by law to provide seats for female workers. Twelve States have enacted legislation intended to effect the extinction of the sweatshop system, with its degrading and revolting accessories. Of these twelve States ten are Republican and two Democratic. Seventeen Republican and five Democratic States have laws requiring the payment of wages weekly or fortnightly, or in some instances, prohibiting a longer period than one month between pay days.

Trade Union Labels.

Fourteen Republican States and only one Democratic State—Nevada—have laws in force prohibiting employers from discharging persons on account of membership in labor organizations, or from compelling persons to agree not to become members of labor organizations as a condition of securing employment or continuing in their employ. Forty States have passed laws allowing trade unions to adopt labels or trademarks to be used to designate products of the labor of their members, and prohibiting the counterfeiting of the use of such labels or trademarks by unauthorized persons. Of these States twenty-eight are Republican and twelve are Democratic.

The foregoing presents for consideration by intelligent, patriotic labor substantial facts and figures taken from the statute books of the several States. No platitudes can upset them. They prove the records of the Republican party and of the Democracy on the labor issue, and they must convince every reasonable reader that the Republican party has not only brought American labor up to its present honorable standard, but that labor can look only to the Republican party for assurance of protection and prosperity in the future.

Would you like to know what I would do with the trusts? I answer that I would restrain unlawful trusts with all the efficiency of competitive prices and would punish with all the severity of criminal prosecution every attempt on the part of aggregated capital to suppress competition.—Hon. We heard of a Republican in Rushville who is so strongly and radically partisan that he makes his wife wear a "Taft-etta" dress.

Referring to the slanderous attack on Watson, one of the speakers last night lamented: "What are we coming to?—He might have well said 'When are we coming to—and open a return fire?'"

A fellow who would deliberately cry out "fire" in a crowded theater ought to have his voice taken away from him.

The piano player at the Vaucler theater lost an elegant opportunity last night to prove a "hero-ess" by pounding on the ivories and quieting the crowd.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

ROSEBUD RESERVATION.

Dallas, S. D., Oct. 1.—In Pullman cars and empty freights, in prairie schooners, on horseback and afoot, eager land-seekers are gathering by thousands at Uncle Sam's newest Mecca to register for a chance in the great land lottery whereby the government will open to settlement the 6,000 quarter sections of rich agricultural and grazing lands embraced in the Rosebud Indian reservation.

Although registration does not begin until next Monday, a considerable number of the 80,000 people expected are already here and the problem of providing them with food and shelter has become a serious one. Dealers in foodstuffs, and the proprietors of tents and shacks dignified by the name of hotels, are reaping a rich harvest from the assembled thousands. Many extremely poor people, lured here by the hope of securing a home and bettering their fortunes, are on the brink of starvation and with the coming of cold weather it is feared much suffering will result.

The registration will continue from next Monday, when the land office here and at other points will open, to October 17. The drawing itself is scheduled for October 19, when the names of the lucky ones will be drawn from the wheels of fortune. Only veterans will be allowed to register by agents, all others being required to come here in person.

THEY DO THAT HERE.

(New Castle Courier.)

It was a New Castle girl, who on Sunday night taught the Knightstown lover a lesson that he will never forget. He had not known her long, but, as she stood in the moonlight, a white dress and a blue sash set off her figure so well that he thought he had never seen a prettier picture. And then he did an awful thing; he kissed her. The innocent girl shrank from him in horror, and the young man realized that he had gone too far. Indeed, as the panting girl strove to collect herself sufficiently to express the scorn surging in her bosom, the young man thought of the beating he must endure the next day from her father and brothers, and of the long accounts of the fight that would appear in the newspapers. Fortunately he had his hat in his hand, and turned to go. But the girl struggled to speak; she would express her contempt for his action though it killed her, when she said in a low faltering voice, full of deep-seated hatred, "When are you coming again?"

Lady Betty Across the Water

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

Dear Reader—If you will ever feel that you simply have to love a girl, the girl you will love will be just like Lady Betty Bulkeley, sister of the Duke of Stanforth. You will love Lady Betty even if you are the staunchest of Yankees, with an inherited suspicion of the English, for she will snuggle down, in spite of yourself, in the coziest corner of your inmost heart. She is the sunshine of her own pleasant Surrey meads, added to the moonlight glinting on the surface of the Hudson she found so admirable. We have sent many of our fair maids abroad, and the balance of trade in this respect is heavily in England's favor, but we should immediately let down all bars, tariff or other, that prevent more sweethearts like Lady Betty from coming "across the water."

Chapter I

DON'T know yet whether I'm pleased or not, but I do know that I'm excited—more excited than I've ever been in my life, except perhaps when Miss MacIntyre, my last governess, had hysterics in the schoolroom and fainted among the tea things.

I suppose I shan't be able to decide about the state of my feelings until I've had more of them on the same subject or until I've written down in this book of mine everything exactly as it's happened. I like doing that. It makes things seem so clear when you try to review them afterward.

The excitement began at breakfast by mother having a letter that she liked. I knew she liked it by the way her eyes lighted up, as if they had been asleep and the letter a match. All the other letters, mostly with horrible, unbecomingly looking envelopes, which had been making her quite glowy, she pushed aside.

Mother won't have a crown on her envelopes. She thinks it's vulgar. Besides, putting it only on the paper saves expense. This envelope had a great sprightly gold crest, but she didn't seem to disapprove of it. She read on and on, then suddenly glanced up as if she would have said something quickly to Victoria. She didn't say it, though, for she remembered me. I am never taken into family conclaves because I'm not out yet. I don't see what difference that makes, especially as I'm not to be allowed to come out till after Vic's married, because she was presented four years ago and isn't even engaged yet. So for all I can tell I may have to stay in till I'm a hundred or leak out slowly when nobody is noting, as Vic says girls do in the middle classes. This time I didn't mind, however, for I couldn't see how the letter concerned me, and as I was dying for a sight of Berengaria's puppies, which were born last night, I was glad when mother told me not to fidget after I'd finished breakfast, but to run down to the kennels if I liked.

Soon I forgot all about the letter, for the puppies were the dearest ducks on earth (can puppies be ducks, I wonder?), and besides, it was such a delicious June morning that I could have danced with joy because I was alive.

I often feel like that. But there's nobody to tell, except the trees and the dogs and my poor pony, who is almost too old and second childish now to understand. She was my brother Stanforth's pony first of all, and Stanforth is twenty-eight. Then she was Vic's, and Vic is—but mother doesn't like Vic's age to be mentioned any more, though she is years younger than Stan-

I took a walk in the park and afterward went through the rose garden to see how the roses were getting on. There were a lot of petals for my pot pourri, and gathering them has kept me for some time. Then as the jars stand in Vic's and my den (she calls it her den, but it has to be part mine as I have no other), I was going in by one of the long windows when I heard mother's voice. "The question is," she was saying, "what's to be done with Betty?"

I turned around and ran away on my tiptoes across the lawn, for I didn't want to be an eavesdropper, and it would be nearly as bad to have mother know I had heard even those few words. She would be annoyed, and mother chills me all the way through to my bones when she's annoyed. It is wonderful how she does it, for she never scolds. But the thermometer simply drops to freezing point, and you feel like a poor little shivering crocus that has come up too soon by mistake to find the world covered with snow and no hope of squeezing back into its own cozy warm bulb again.

I stopped out of doors till luncheon and played croquet against myself wishing that Stan would run down for although Stan rather fancies him self as a gorgeous person since poor father's death gave him the title, he is quite nice to me when it occurs to him I'm always glad when he comes to the Towers, but he hardly ever does in the season, and then in August and September he's always in Scotland. So is Vic, for the matter of that, and she hates being in the country in May and June, though Surrey is so close to town that luckily she doesn't miss much. But this year we seem to have been horribly poor for some reason. Vic says it's Stan's fault. He is extravagant, I suppose. However, as everything is really his, I don't see that we ought to complain. Only it can't be pleasant for him to feel that mother is worrying lest he should marry and make her a frumpy dowager before we two girls are off her hands.

At luncheon mother mme that she had wired to ask Mrs. Stuyvesant Knox and her cousin, Miss Sally Woodburn, down to dinner and to stay the night. "You will be pleased, Betty, as you like Miss Woodburn so much," she said.

"I like her, but I don't like Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox, and I don't know how to pronounce her," said I. "For goodness sake, don't call her Mrs. Ess Kay to her face again," cut in Vic.

"I didn't mean to; it slipped out," I defended myself. "Besides it was you who nicknamed her that."

"Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox is a very charming person and a thorough woman of the world," mother asserted in-that way she has of saying the word which you had better leave for the last if you know what is good for you.

The excitement began at breakfast.

I did leave it for the last so far as answering was concerned, but inside where, thank goodness, even her eyes can't see, I was wondering hard when mother had formed that flattering opinion. A fortnight ago I heard her announce that Americans "got upon her nerves," and she hoped she would soon be called upon to meet any more. As she had made this remark directly after bidding Mrs. Ess Kay goodbye, I naturally supposed that lady to be the immediate cause for it. But now it seemed this was not the case.

"You would be very ungrateful if you disliked her," mother went on "as she took such a tremendous fancy to you."

"Dear me, I didn't know that!" I exclaimed, opening my eyes wide. "I thought it was Vic she—"

"You are her favorite, as you are with Miss Woodburn also," said mother, who gets the effect of being so tremendously dignified, partly, I believe, from never clipping her word as the rest of us do. "I am asking them down again especially on your account, and I want you to be particularly nice to them."

"It's easy enough to be nice to Sally Woodburn, but—"

I caught a look from Vic and broke off my sentence, hurrying to change it into another. "As they're sailing for the States so soon, I shan't have time to spread myself much."

"Don't be slangy, Betty, it doesn't suit you," said mother. "You pick up too many things from Stanforth."

"Trust him not to drop anything worth having," interpolated Vic, which was pert. But mother never reproves her.

"Perhaps Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox and Miss Woodburn won't come," I said for the sake of getting on safe ground.

"Not come? Of course they will come. It is short notice, but if they have other engagements, then—" break them," returned mother. And though it would be as impossible for her to be vulgar or snobbish as I would for a tall white arum lily to be either of these things, still I couldn't help feeling that her unconscious thought was, "The invitation to a couple of unknown touring Americans from the Duchess of Stanforth is equivalent to my receiving a royal command."

She was probably right, anyhow so far as Mrs. Ess Kay is concerned. As for Sally Woodburn, I don't think she has a drop of snobbish blood in her veins. She's southern—not South American, as I was stupid enough to think at first, but from some southern state or other, Kentucky, I believe it is. She's short and plump and olive and smooth as ivory satin, with soft, lazy brown eyes, a voice like rich cream, a smile which says, "Please like me," and pretty, crinkly dark hair that is beginning to glitter with silver network here and there, though she isn't exactly old, even for a woman, perhaps about thirty.

I knew that Miss Woodburn rather fancied me, and I was quite pleased to take her up to her room when she and her elder cousin arrived about an hour before dinner. I stopped for a few minutes and then left her with her maid, while I went to help Vic and get myself ready. We've only one maid between the three of us nowadays, which means (unless there's some reason why Vic should be made particularly smart) that mother gets more than a third of Thompson's services. That's as it should be, of course, and we don't grudge it. But Vic's rather helpless, and I always have to hurry to see her through.

This evening, though, I found Thompson in Vic's room, next to mine, and just as I scientifically dislocated my arms to unhook my frock which does up behind, mother came in. "Betty," she said, quite playfully for her, "I have a very pleasant surprise for you. You would never be able to guess, so I will tell you. I have consented to let you go and visit Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox and Miss Woodburn in America. Aren't you delighted?"

I felt as if the wall of the house were tumbling down and I would presently be crumpled up underneath.

"My goodness gracious, mother!" I managed to stammer, forgetting how I've always stood in awe of her since I could toddle. "How—how perfectly extraordinary! Why am I going? And is it all decided, whether I like or not?"

"Of course you will like. To travel with pleasant companions and see a great new country under such charming auspices is an immense privilege—a very unusual privilege for a young girl," mother replied promptly. "As for the 'why' you are going because you have been cordially invited; because I think the experience will be for your advantage, present and future; because also it will be good for a growing girl like you to have the bracing effect of a sea voyage."

"Mother, I haven't a thing the matter with me, and I haven't grown the eighth of an inch this whole last year. You can see by my frocks," I protested, more on principle than because it would be of any use to protest or because I was sure mother wanted to change her mind. Naturally the protest had no effect, but mother's mood mercifully remained placid and she didn't give me a single freezing look.

"Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox is a woman of good family and position in her own country," she went calmly on. "I have satisfied myself on those points beyond doubt or I should not dream of allowing you to be her guest. She has a cottage at Newport and will take you there, as summer, it seems, is not the season in New York. You may stay with her through July and August—even for September, if you are amusing yourself. Later Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox will send you home with friends of hers, who can be trusted to take good care of you. She knows several people, she tells me, who are crossing in the autumn to winter abroad, and they would bring you to me. Of course I should have to be nice to

So it was all arranged, even to the details of my homecoming and the price to be paid for returning me, like a parcel, to my owner! Suddenly I remembered the words I had overheard at the window of the den, "The question is what is to be done with Betty?"

Mother had evidently been so anxious to have the question answered that she had at once taken measures to settle it. But why should anything be done with me? Nothing ever had been so far, except when I was sent last autumn to stop with my aunt, and she was so much annoyed because my Cousin Loveland came home unexpectedly that after that I could do nothing to please her and was packed back to Battlemead Towers in disgrace. I never could understand for what crime.

"How did Miss Ess—I mean Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox—happen to ask for a visit from me?" I ventured to wriggle out, like a worm who isn't sure whether it had better turn or not. I was certain that for some reason of her own mother had suggested the idea, if only hypocritically. But she seemed almost too frank as she answered, and it was frightening not even to be snubbed.

"I told you today that she had taken a fancy to you, my dear. Of course she could not hope to secure Victoria, even if she preferred her, for Victoria has important engagements which will carry her through the season and afterward to Coves and up to Scotland for the shooting at Dorloch castle. But you are still almost a child, and children do not have engagements. Nevertheless you are Lady Betty Bulkeley, the Duke of Stanforth's sister, and as such, though in yourself you are an unimportant little person, it's not impossible that as a member of your family these Americans may think you worth cultivating. One hears that they worship titles."

"I'm sure they can't worship them as much as some people in our own country who haven't got them do," I cried, defending Americans for Miss Woodburn's sake. "Vic says—"

"Never mind what Victoria says," returned mother. "The less you think on these subjects the better, my dear Betty. I merely hinted at a possible and partial incentive to these people's friendship for you, so that you need not feel it incumbent to be oppressively grateful, you know. I should wish you to keep your dignity among foreigners, even though you would, of course, look upon Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox as, in a way, your guardian. Now I must call Thompson and have her put me into my dinner dress, as there is no more time to waste. When Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox speaks of your visit you will know what to say."

I mumbled something vaguely dutiful and began to dress as quickly as I could. But the more I thought of it the more I felt that I hadn't been fairly treated, to be disposed of in such an offhand way. After all, I am eighteen, and a person of eighteen isn't a child.

I'm not sure I wasn't putting when Vic came in, ready for dinner, asking if she should fasten up my frock. I had nearly finished it, for practice has made me almost as clever as a conjurer about manipulating my hands behind my back, but when Vic flew at me and began giving useless little touches I guessed that she wanted to whisper something in my ear without mother seeing. If she should happen to prance in at the wrong moment, as she often does.

"Look here, Betty, are you going to be a good little girl and do what you're bid without making a fuss?" she asked in a quick, low voice.

"I'm not certain yet," said I. "I'm thinking it over. I don't see why I should be sent off across the water with strangers at a moment's notice, and I—"

"Isn't a moment's notice. It's five days. They're not sailing till Wednesday, and as they've a suit engaged—the best on the ship, Mrs. Ess Kay says—you're going won't put them out a bit, and they'll love having you. As for the whys and wherefores, mother's been telling you, hasn't she?"

"She talked about my health and valuable experiences and a lot of things in the air, but I feel there's something behind it, and I hate mysteries."

"If I can convince you it's for the good of the family in general, if not yours in particular, will you be a nice white woolly lamb and go with your kind little American friends?" Vic broke in, with her head on my shoulder and an arm slipped around my waist.

"Mrs. Ess Kay's neither little nor kind," said I, "but of course I'll do anything to help if only I'm treated like a rational, grownup human being."

"And so you shall be. I told mother it would be much better to be frank with you, if you are a baby. It's too late to explain things now, but if you'll be sweet to Mrs. Ess Kay and agree with everything everybody says about your trip, when we come up to bed and mother's door's shut I'll make a clean breast and show you exactly how matters stand."

With this we separated, for we could hear Mrs. Ess Kay's voice in the corridor talking to Sally Woodburn on the way downstairs. Her voice is never difficult to hear; rather the other way, and Miss Woodburn's soft little drawl following it, reminded me of a spoonful of Devonshire cream after a bunch of currants.

Mother was with them both in the oak drawing room when Vic and I got down, and I found myself staring at Mrs. Ess Kay with a new kind of criticism in my mind. Indeed it hadn't occurred to me before to criticize at all. I'd only felt that I didn't want to come any closer to her. Now I was to come much closer it seemed, and I looked at the glittering lady, wondering how it would feel to be so close, wondering what she herself was.

Stop That Cold

To check early colds or Grippe with "Preventics" means sure defeat for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure even a deeply seated cold, but taken early—at the sneeze stage—they break, or head of the early cold. That's surely better. That's why they are called Preventics. Preventics are little Candy Cold Cures. No Quinine, no physic, nothing sickening. Nice for the children—and thoroughly safe too. If you feel chilly, if you sneeze, if you ache all over, think of Preventics. Promptness may also save half your usual sickness. And don't forget your child, if there is feverishness, night or day. MANILLA TO WELCOME FLEET.

Manilla, Sept. 30.—On the last leg of the voyage over the 3600 miles of bounding billows that lie between this city and west Australian coast, the last stop of the fleet, the American Armada is now approaching Manilla. Within a short time the sixteen great battleships will poke their noses into Manila Bay, where a decade ago Admiral Dewey, with shrieking shells, tore down the flag of Spain and first permanently planted the Stars and Stripes in the Orient.

Since the latter part of July, when the fleet set sail from Honolulu for New Zealand and Australia, the gallant tars have not set foot on American soil. While the welcome of the British colonies was everything that could be desired, it is likely that of officers and men will feel more at home when they see the "Star Spangled Banner" floating over an American city.

Nor will the visiting sea fighters be disappointed at the heartiness of their welcome. Already every building in Manilla is decorated in some manner in honor of the approaching fleet, and the Americans, Spaniards, Chinese, Japanese and natives will join in a great demonstration of hilarious greeting to the ships and men who defend the naval honors of Uncle Sam on the high seas.

Relief is not cure; opium will stop the most excruciating pain, but it won't cure the disease.

And it's just the same with alleged dyspepsia cures which contain pep-sin. The pepsin will help to digest the food, but the stomach is left in worse condition than it was before.

You don't want pepsin to digest your food; you want the natural juices of your stomach to digest your food. If you have dyspepsia or any stomach trouble, you want to make your stomach so strong that it will digest its own food.

You can make your stomach so strong that you can eat what you want and all you want any time you want it, without distress.

Mi-o-na will cure your dyspepsia or any other stomach trouble by building up the flabby walls, and making the stomach so strong that it will digest food without artificial aid.

In other words, Mi-o-na cures dyspepsia by removing the cause.

agents for Mi-o-na in Rushville and they say to every reader of the Daily Republican, whose stomach is weak, who has indigestion or dyspepsia, that Mi-o-na is guaranteed to cure or money back.

The price is only 50 cents a box, and one box is all you need to prove that you are on the right road to health and happiness.

"I can't say enough for Mi-o-na in one week than all the doctors have for the two years I have been under their care, and I will do all I can to

Here's Where the Fun Comes In

This really happened, but it was several days ago. A man with his shoulders thrown back a little farther than usual, and with a somewhat sheepish grin on his face, entered a local candy store. He looked around over the stock of candies, studied a while and then looked some more.
He did not say a word. He just looked some more and thought some more. Finally he thought he ought to say something.

"You see my boy's goin' to git married today and sorta thought I'd ought to do some thing for him. He's been party good to help me on my farm down there. I jest don't know what to get. Wish my wife had come along."

Then he looked some more and studied some more. He finally got far enough along to ask the clerk the price of the candy. Then after looking at fifty-seven varieties more or less he wanted to know if they didn't have some other kind.

"Oh shaw, I don't know what to buy. My wife said she reckoned we'd ought to get some candy but she did not say how much or what kind.
You know weddin's are big things."

The clerk waited, and so did three other customers in the store. Finally the great question was decided.

"Wall, I'll tell you. You jest wrap me up two pounds of that mixed candy. Ten cents a pound did you say?"

diniers, New Cut Glass at Basement Prices. NEW FALL BULBS.

THIS MATTER OF SMOKE.

We are sure that our view of the cigar business is unusual. Most druggists and all cigar dealers sell cigars to make money. We sell them to make friends—and money too in the long run. We want to get smokers into the store and let them judge what kind of a business we conduct by the kind of a cigar they get. In cigars as in drugs we get the best that money can buy.
